WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

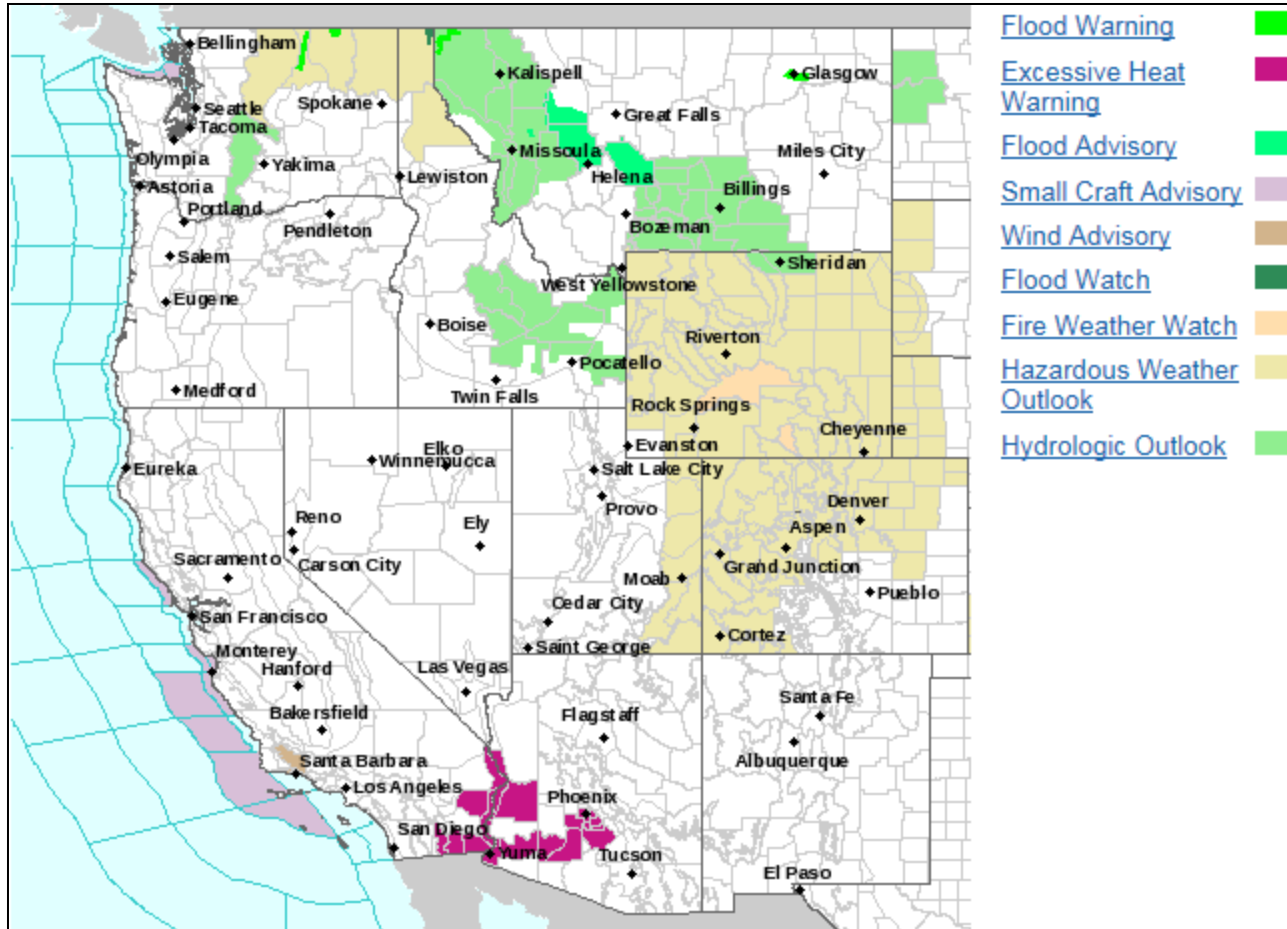

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

A low pressure system will track into the Pacific Northwest which could bring a few showers today with drier weather then expected on Monday. Another system could bring additional chances for rain midweek.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

Warm conditions will continue over the mountains and deserts through today, while slow cooling spreads inland from the coast. Above normal temperatures are expected to prevail through at least early this week. Overnight coastal low clouds are expected to develop along much of the coastline tonight and continue through the week.
